NOBEL LAUREATE IN ECONOMICS – HEROES OF AN ANNIVERSARY OF 2014

Swedish bank Prize in Economic Sciences in Memory of Alfred Nobel is sixth Nobel award and one nomination, not provided in the will of the famous Swedish inventor. Its establishment in 1968, the Nobel Foundation demonstrates the important role of the economic sphere of activity in the life of modern man. The awards are granted Royal Swedish Academy of Sciences, which is the working body of the Premium Committee, elected from among the members of the Academy for three years.

From 1969 to 1913 Memorial Prize in Economics was given 45 times, only 74 awarded laureate.

An important issue is to examine the legacy laureates in Economic Sciences James Heckman, William Sharpe, Robert Solow, and James Buchanan, whose anniversary is celebrated in 2014

Nobel International Information Center (NIIC) has prepared a brief biographical overview of archival, library and museum materials, which it has at the moment. NIIC has a complete list of works all four winners, who entered into a database and processed Scientometrics, many copies of these works, as well as many scientific and biographical materials; some of them. In NIIC are also extensive portrait galleries on each winner, photographs which are made by one of the authors at the meetings with the winners in different years.
